July 12, 2006 Katya Kazakina "...The exhibition's heartbeat comes from a contraption by Cologne-based Herwig Weiser, an acrylic tube suspended about 6 feet from the floor by two chains. It pulsates with red lights while emitting sounds purportedly brought here, via an Internet hookup, from outer space but bearing a marked resemblance to crickets and distant thunder. It looks like a time bomb and is titled ``Death Before Disko.''"
